

Tutoring Online and On-Campus

Last Modified on 08/07/2020 11:56 am EDT

McNeese has several tutoring options available on campus and online to assist students.

Contact your instructor for help outside of class - Additional instruction can be arranged after class by contacting the course instructor for help. See the course syllabi for contact information.

Free Online Tutoring - Students create an account to access free online tutoring provided by the State Library of Louisiana and powered by Tutor.com, a service of The Princeton Review. In addition to live tutors, students can also use the Write Tutor Drop-off Essay Review service for help with written assignments and research papers or Drop-off a Math question. Student begin by selecting the "Start Now" button from the Homework Louisiana home page to create an account and login. Once you log in select Get Tutor Now to connect to a live tutor, or scroll down the page to select other tutoring resources and services.

Online Tutoring The Write to Excellence Center (WTEC) and Literature Lab - Only online tutoring is available from Summer 2020 until further notice. Phone number 337.562-4205, or email writetoexcellence@mcneese.edu. To schedule an appointment: mcneese.mywconline.com. Additional information about online tutoring and contacting the center is available here.

The center, located in Kaufman115, aids students in strengthening writing skills and in thinking critically about their own writing. Besides offering feedback on written work, tutors provide students with guidance and help on the development of all aspects of the writing process, including brainstorming, theses, content, and citations. Tutors also provide students with assistance in any discipline or form of professional development, including résumé development, reports in technical fields, and academic writing and/or publications. While tutors do not proof-read written work, they do assist students in the development of personal proof-reading skills. The Literature Lab is now part of WTEC and is a resource for students to discuss reading materials. Tutors help students learn how to annotate and create useful notes on readings; understand literary terms, techniques, and concepts; decipher poetic and/or archaic language; identify central themes and issues; and locate where problems of misinterpretation arise.

Use this campus map for additional on-campus tutoring services.

Foreign Languages Lab - located in Kaufman Hall Room 308, offers extensive tutoring for students enrolled in foreign language courses. The lab consists of computers with language programs and recording capabilities, study tables for small groups, and a Promethean board and Smart TV for group viewing. More information may be obtained from the student's foreign language instructor.

Mathlab Tutoring Center - located in Kirkman Hall Room 201, provides tutoring for students enrolled in Math 113, College Algebra. The ACC Tutoring Center works on a first-come, first-served basis, so no appointments are necessary. To view tutoring times, visit aclc.mcneese.edu/ttcenters.

On-Campus Tutoring Center - located in Kirkman Hall Room 129, provides tutoring for students enrolled in math, biology, chemistry, physics, and/or engineering courses. To view tutoring times and subjects being tutored, visit aclc.mcneese.edu/ttcenters.

Learn about additional campus services here.
